

MAJ. RAY IN BAD ODOR WHEN HE WAS STATIONED AT HONOLULU

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 21. — Some of the documents in the case of Major Beecher B. Ray, which were said to be missing from the War Department files, were turned up today and sent to the Helm committee by Secretary Stinson, who said the papers had been found among personal effects of J. Franklin Bell, formerly chief of staff.

The committee already had subpoenaed General Tasker H. Bliss, who was said to have copies of the documents.

Major Ray, who is an Army paymaster, has been under fire before the committee on charges of political activities.

The records show that Major Ray, when under investigation in the Philippines on charges of signing a false certificate, used a character recommendation from Taft, then President-elect, that on another occasion Ray was ordered to the Philippines at his own expense by President Roosevelt, and that later he was ordered back to the United States at his own expense by General Bell, who cabled that the order was "by direction."

The following interchange of messages is shown in the papers turned over to the committee:

"WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19, 1908. Bliss, Manila: Will send Monday confidential message. Please decipher personally. BELI."

"WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21, 1908. Bliss, Manila: Personal. Confidential. If possible please meet requirements of discipline in Beecher B. Ray case without reference to court or War Department. Will support your action. BELI."

The following evidently was a reply: "MANILA, Jan. 2, 1909: Staff War, Washington: Referring to your personal and confidential telegram of Dec. 21st, I have no doubt matter will be adjusted satisfactorily as suggested by you. To prevent further embarassment I shall in due time recommend transfer from the division of officer concerned. BLISS."

On Jan. 12, 1909, General Bliss cabled to General Bell further, stating that Major Ray was under orders and about to sail for Honolulu.

"Paymaster General charges Beecher B. Ray knowingly signed false vouchers," the cablegram read in part. "Recommends appropriate action. Judge Advocate General recommends disciplinary measures as may be deemed best. Beecher B. Ray under orders to proceed to Honolulu. About to sail commercial liner Jan. 16th at his own expense. Orders War Department referred to necessitate another investigation, probable trial, general court-martial. Will retain Beecher B. Ray accordingly."

General Bell answered the cablegram the same day, stating: "Send to me personally all papers relating to three cases mentioned in your telegram. Further investigation unnecessary at present. Beecher B. Ray to proceed to Honolulu pursuant to orders."

This communication, it appears from the disclosed correspondence, did not reach General Bliss for some days, and on January 29th General Bell sent the cablegram in which he referred to "direction" in the case from some source.

The cablegram follows: "WASHINGTON, Jan. 29, 1909. — Colonel Stephen C. Mills, Manila: If Tasker H. Bliss is absent, communicate immediately with him and say my cablegram to him, Jan. 13th, relating to investigation and papers in the case of Beecher B. Ray was not personal, but was sent by direction, and if it has not been complied with it should be done at once. "BELI."

The committee members think there is still some correspondence missing and hope to secure some links from General Bliss, who is to appear on Monday.

other machines are to make but forty-five miles per hour, but will carry an operator and an assistant and a fuel supply for four hours' continuous flight. They must be able to climb 2000 feet in ten minutes. It is explained that if the weight-carrying capacity is increased to 600 pounds the speed may be reduced to thirty-eight miles an hour, and the speed in climbing cut down to 1600 feet in ten minutes.

The speed machine is to have a 6-cylinder V-shaped motor. Both it and the weight-carrying machines will have a gliding angle of one in six, and they will be tested in gliding by having the engine cut out at 1,000 feet and gliding down. Among the specifications is the requirement that the machine shall be capable of alighting on, or rising from, plowed ground. If this is done it will be a thing never accomplished by any other machine.

Because of disability resulting from an accident with an Army aeroplane in 1910, Clarence Sullivan, formerly a member of Company H, Signal Corps, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Omaha, has been granted a pension of $40 a month. This is among the first of the pensions granted by the Government on account of injuries sustained in the aeronautic branch of the service.

Sullivan was using a dynamometer at Courtland Beach, near Fort Omaha, to test the maximum thrust of the propeller of an aeroplane when his right arm was caught in the whirling blades. His arm was injured that amputation at the shoulder was necessary. He had previously been in charge of the engine of the first Baldwin dirigible balloon.

The pension is dated from the time of application, Jan. 18, 1911.

Brig. Gen. James Allen, Chief Signal Officer of the Army, celebrated the sixty-third anniversary of his birth by treating himself to half a holiday. He left his office with the expressed intention of doing a marathon, eating a hearty dinner and possibly sawing a cord of wood before retiring, just to round out the day's exercise.

Gen. Allen is considered remarkable in the War Department as being the youngest-looking officer in the service so near the age of retirement. To the outsider he looks to be between 45 and 50. He has been chief signal officer since the retirement of Gen. A. W. Greely. The Signal Service during his administration has developed the use of cables, wireless and aeroplanes, so that it is now one of the most advanced branches of the service in the realm of applied science.

So far as agriculture is concerned the Philippines are no better off today than they were fourteen years ago under the Spanish rule, according to Prof. Charles W. Piper of the Agricultural Department, who has returned to Washington from a tour of the Orient.

Prof. Piper attributes the lack of progression to the indefinite policy of the United States toward the islands. He believes the lands are capable of great agricultural development, but says the natives are not now capable of self-government.

It has been decided that four of the five new aeroplanes to be bought for the Army shall be Wright machines and the fifth a Burgess-Wright. The contract for the new speed machine will be given also to the Wright company, which will guarantee a minimum speed of sixty-five miles per hour. The Bulletin Want Ads will find it.
